

Miss Krueger's Kindergarten Class

February 6th, 2015

Reading: The class continued to use their predicting skills to guess what was going to happen in the book “Can I Bring My Pterodactyl to School, Ms. Johnson?”. We have been studying the series of Lois G. Grambling and the students love them! They are all related to having a dinosaurs and the catch phrase, “Can I? PLEASE!?”

Writing: Students started adding speech bubbles to their writing. We looked at some books that used these and we all agreed – it made the stories come to life! They have had fun using the bubbles to describe the feelings their characters have.

Math: We started to compose and decompose the numbers 11-19. The students took to this VERY quickly. They were racing through the problems before I could even give them the directions! We will be having a test on this chapter when we return on Monday. The next unit will be on measurement.

Dinosaurs: We discussed the differences between T-Rexs and Triceratops. The students created a T-Rex skeleton and brightly colored Triceratops picture. We attempted to create some fossils with a mix that did not work at all. It stuck to their hands! Luckily, Play-Doh works just as well. The kids had a great time using tiny dinosaurs to create imprints in the Play-Doh.
