

Miss Krueger's Kindergarten Class

January 16th, 2015

Reading: We continued discussing characters, setting, and sequencing this week. We reviewed how to use “First, Next, Then, and Last” when sequencing a story. We also started talking about certain consonant blends like “sh” and “ch”. They enjoyed coming up with words they knew that contained these blends. We switched some guided reading groups around and I’m very impressed on how the class handled it!

Writing: The students were thrilled to get their very own sight word sheet to add to their writing folder. This is just another one of the tools they can use during Writing Workshop. I have been challenging them to use at least three of the sight words they know in their daily writing.

Math: The students have done wonderful with the addition chapter. We took a test on Wednesday and there weren’t any major issues. We promptly started a new chapter on subtraction or “take away” on Thursday.

Science: We recycled toilet paper and created out very own small sheet of paper! The students liked shaking the container up to make the pulp. On Wednesday, we got a little messy....We papier machied! I wish I could have gotten some pictures of the students covering their small balloons with the paste and newspaper, but my hands were messy from helping them! I’m hoping to send home the finished project on Monday.

Field Trip Chaperones:

There is plenty of room on the bus for more chaperones! A gold sheet went home earlier in the week with more information. Please send a note or the gold sheet back if you would like to join us on this fun field trip!

Polar Animals:

We read all about polar bears and walrus’ this week! We were even able to use our sequencing words to describe what happened from the time the babies were born until they were grown up.

Book Bags:

Book bags are going home for the first time this week. Book bags will be going home every Friday. Please send the book bag back by the following Friday. There is a more detailed sheet about it attached.
