

Miss Krueger's Kindergarten Class

October 17, 2014

Reading: During reading this week, we learned a new poem called “The Little Turtle”. We had Ms. Quick’s class join us for several of our Daily 5 rotations and they also went to Ms. Quick’s room as well.

Writing: The students didn’t get a chance to write in their journals much this week. We did have some cut-up sentence activities that the students had fun with. They enjoyed putting the words together like a puzzle to figure out the correct sentence. Next week, we are going to start writing hard-to-write ideas.

Math: We continued working on our ordinal numbers. Thank you for helping your child with their homework! The ordinal numbers can be tricky for some students. We reviewed our chapter on Thursday and took the test today. On Monday, we begin numbers beyond 10.

PALS Testing: The class should be done with testing this afternoon. I am proud with how the students handled changing classrooms and trying their best. I look forward to sharing the data the PALS test has provided on your child at our next conference.

Pumpkins:

This upcoming week, the students are going to look at the life cycle of a pumpkin and even observe their very own pumpkin!
